Date-29/11/2022

Time: 1 pm

“The good life is a process, not a state of being. It is a direction, not a destination.”

-Carl Rogers

The Induction lecture on the importance of having a positive psychological perspective was taken by Prof. Rajendra Mahajan. Our life is full of ups and downs, In order to adjust with this new normal life, all it takes is a little bit of change not, just in the perspective of an individual, but the psychological perspective of an individual. As the FE students' life will be busy with the completion of Assignments, Projects, Variety of tasks, presentations, group discussions, etc.

The session on psychological perspective acted as a guideline to the FE students to enhance their thought process and gain an understanding of the ways to improve their psychological perspective of looking at things and situations in a positive way. The daily life of an engineering student is a life full of new challenges and tasks , all it will take is a little more efforts to add meaning to every work by more self-confidence and positive outlook of looking at the task undertaken.

Empathy is seeing with the eyes of another, listening with the ears of another and feeling with the heart of another.” – Alfred Adler .

Life is very cruel at times people’s lives are full of pain and suffering, most loving and caring people in the given circumstances can become unloving and hurtful; but one needs to understand the situation person in front may be going through.

Prof.Divya Acharya emphasised the importance of having an empathetic outlook towards other students, faculties and society and the whole world.

The FE students always are new to the set up of engineering education wherein they forget and don’t realise the importance of having an empathetic attitude towards their classmates.

The FE Student’s come from varied background and in order to make each one realise the importance of ‘Empathy’ a session was arranged to provide an insight in the concept of empathy which enabled a student to change their perception about each other .
